FUNDS AND CLOTHING NEEDED FOR RELIEF

The Central Relief Committee is being called upon to collect funds and clothing to come to the rescue and assist with cash and clothing.

A large amount is being made to the farmers for either cash or wheat. Arrangements have been made with the grain elevators whereby farmers may "leave" a few bushels of wheat for the relief committee which will be used in purchasing clothing.

In previous years there was heavy response in the appeals of the Central Relief Committee, both by organizations and individuals, and it is hoped that this year will be no less responsive at this time.

The Tribune would be glad to receive money in small or large amounts, and such will be immediately turned over to the Central Relief.

Name and address of contributing will be published each week.

The cause is a worthy one and should be heartily supported. Those in charge of the work of collecting and distributing receive no pay, giving freely of their time.

TIME ROLLS ON

I read that India is to be given home rule with certain safeguards. That should be long in coming about peace in that country. Time has proven that the secret of the success of our empire lies in the fact that where possible the component parts of the empire enjoy responsible government. The spirit of self-government to India is bound to prove another pillar of strength to the empire.

Time Rolls On.

I read that the first 24 prizes in the spring wheat class at Chicago were won by Alberta. Canada, all of which goes to prove that we have the soil, climate and farmers necessary to win the big show.

Time Rolls On.

I read that clerks working for certain stockmen were forced to resign, salt the sugar and do other things not in accordance with the ethics of business.

I wonder how they would doctor up to do if called upon in a great emergency. It would be nice if there is one spot where the people of the Oxford Movement could apply their principles.

Time Rolls On.

I read that John Webley, the busy battler of the La Glace, who recently put Ed Patterson into slumberland at Dawson Creek, the issue with the Canadian government, the River Block News and challenges the editor of that paper, Harry Giles, to a final battle.

The editor writes that his fighting weight is 120 pounds and he doesn't think he can get along with less than 50 pounds of good red meat in these lean and hard times, but suggests two alternatives. One is to take the load down to his (the editor's) weight or fight a substitute who tips the scales at 160 pounds, which is Webley's fighting weight.

These times are not only tough on governments but they are going to have a rough passage.

It is fortunate that the challenge was issued to the editor of The Tribune, for the reason that he is at present passing around 100 pounds and is not likely to grow any greater, as did old friend, the editor of the Grand River Block News, on the ground floor.

John, who was a visitor to Grande Prairie on Monday, stated that he is willing to fight in dark hours, if terms can be arranged.

WELL EQUIPPED PLANT

Over the winter I had the privilege of inspecting the Frontier sash and door plant the first time since the master had been re-arranged.

I was shown through by Jim Roland who has charge.

Jim earned his trade in the old country and has since worked across Canada, being employed in the management of the fine plants in the Dominion. His recent general inspection work on indicated this fact.

Practically everything seen in a building is made by him and his shop.

Years ago most of the doors, window sashes, etc., were shipped in. Now these are made in the plant on the ground, eliminating the waste necessary when such material was shipped in from the States.

As I was shown through the plant the thought struck me that the more of such plants there are in the West, the better, as they mean greater purchasing power for our community.

The well equipped frontier mill would have the same results.

Mighty businesses have started in a small way. What should be striven for in this country is, wherever possible, to make everything needed right here. This is the only way that we would add greatly to the stabilizing of business. In that way rolls would be created and added service rendered.

MIRAGES

On Sunday afternoon I was picked out to Richmond Hill golf course and invited to Clarendon.

In the car were also Tom Lowes and Frank Spicer.

Strange things were happening in the sky. The clouds were as a result of the prairies being so dry.

To the east there was a second Great Prairie, the sky being filled with clouds as far as the eye could see. It seemed to spring up by magic, lay to the northeast of the real town.

The peaks and valleys and the various peaks and general outline could be picked out.

As we stood and viewed the phenomena, His Worship pointing to the pyramid in Cheops.

Frank Spicer, who is well versed in the history of Egypt, the land noted for its pyramids and as the country in which the pyramids stand, finally came to grief, corrected the Master of Ceremonies.

"I am sorry," he said, "but the whole of Egypt still contained what it was."

As we rambled along there appeared to go to Clarendon, as rumor had it that our old friend, E. V. Berlin, was in residence. On our way we found the rumor correct and after a short pleasant visit we started on the cravings of the inner man.

Timely Hints From the Beaverlodge Sub-Station

By W. D. Albright
"IT IS A PLEASURE AS WELL AS A DUTY TO SERVE"

This winter let us have a good, big, neat woodpile on every farm.

Dry cold, unseasonable, bitter, matured animals little, but drafts are cruel. So are hard, lumpy sleeping places.

When times are bad, there will profit most who have anticipated by increasing production upon the down of improvement.

Since there is no reason to think animals enjoy pain better than we do, let us be careful to cause none unless

Jack Atwood of Wembley, the International Wheat King, is a Canadian born member of a junior grain club and is also a neighbor of Trele, again showing that the young men of the prairies come to Wembley regardless of regulations and our heartiest congratulations are extended to the winners.

Experience has taught oldtimers that in such matters as feed, fuel and water, it is wise while hoping to save, to expect the worst which may happen. Better a stone too much than a thousand stones.

Every day from breeding time to spring farrowing give the broad potassium loaf. It is cheap insurance against hairless, stillborn pigs. A tablespoonful a day of a solution of one ounce of potassium iodide in a gallon of water is the dose.

November was another calm month; with precipitation on average days, averaging 1.71 inches, and snowfall with a previous eight-year average of 1.23 inches. Practically all the precipitation came in the first half of the month, though with roads open, there were no extreme temperatures, the temperatures, the lowest on the hillsides, being 11° F., and the highest at the slough, 11° F. Possibly owing to the dampness of the ground, crop damage was not so great as might be expected at first, there was an unexpected tendency for frost to penetrate cellars, causing them to shatter a great deal of what was on the ground. The mean temperature of the month was 23.45° F., which is 2.3° F. above the mean of eighteen previous Novembers. Sunshine compared as 82.5 hours to 57.00 hours, the average of eleven previous.

A difference between doing one's own work and depending altogether upon others to do it, is that in the former case one accumulates a steadily increasing stock of knowledge, growing up with the tools, animals and equipment. The hired worker is often a young man or, if older, is liable to be a poor manager. Many sons prove an unsuccessful manager. Young or mature, he is lost in western Canada, and the government is his same farm, so that in each successive attitude is general, heaven forbid any attempt at complete socialization.

Turkeys Swelled With Gas

Last month young white turkeys seemed to swell until they were beneath the skin, becoming twice their natural size. If punctured, they could not be saved. They were usually sold after this treatment. We had raised many of the same breed trouble before.

Young geese used to get weak and die, and we are not both feeding them and not feeding them, according to P. A. Valleyview, Alta.

And this inquiry referred to Mr. G. M. Cornie, Vice Commissioner of Alberta Poultry Division, and the Poultry Director of the Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa, who was puzzled. Mr. Cornie had seen cases on one or two occasions but did not know what it might be associated with some underlying system of management.

The issue was abstrated from party politics and recommended Liberalism as an economic and scientific philosophy.

Winning of the Oxford horses this year is of particular significance due to the large number of excellently qualified applications.

Awarded I. O. D. E. Scholarship

Elsie Mae Carleton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John C. Carleton of Sylvan Lake, Alberta, has been awarded the I. O. D. E. Scholarship which will enable her to spend a year in study in England. Miss Carleton graduated from the U. of Alberta in 1932.

Junior Pig Wins

"The Bronze Lady and the Crystal Gentleman," Junior class entry in the annual inter-year dramatic competition, was the best for the year, winning the best entry. The play, a French farce, depended for its appeal on clever wit, sharp dialogue, and was accompanied by a cast of cast directed by Norah Young.

Misses Parker, Kent, Eason, Swallow, Jack, Garret, John Gorley, Robin Ritchie and Paul Underhill were the cast.

"The Bronze Lady and the Crystal Gentleman" was presented to a packed audience on December 3, at the University of Alberta station and the Festivals Network.

Awards for the best individual performances were presented to Margaret Adlinde and Alan Macdonald for their respective parts in the Sophomores and Seniors plays.

As you can see, we are far removed from our laboratories at Ottawa, may we suggest that in the interest of further losses being sustained, we would appreciate your services.

Hedges

1. An unpruned caragana hedge has grown to 12 to 15 feet, the lower stems all bare and the top hanging over the perennial border and covered with dead leaves. The hedge must be cut to take back and it would branch out at the bottom. The seeds are a magnet to mice, which are often seen seeming to attract the mice. These birds, the seeds under the lower branches, will eat my hardy roses then proceed to chew the bark off the rose bushes.

2. The red elder, or honey-suckle has been trained as a hedge? I could have my caragana bushes trained as well and I really don't care about anything more than something tall enough to hide an ugly garden fence. It will keep the rabbits out.

Ans.: 1. One is quite safe in cutting back the caragana. If the hedge is trained to a fence, which will be had by cutting it off at the ground line in autumn or early spring. Prune the hedge once or twice a year and the hedge should, as well as ever, be nicely set out. Many people fail to cut out the caragana within six to eight inches of the ground in the first setting out and the result is an open hedge.

Poisoning might be resorted to in keeping mice from damaging rose bushes, although we are always here to help you with your problems of control where there are domestic animals.

2. We have not seen the red elder used as a hedge, but think it will serve fairly well in some places as a row of trees. If you want a hedge for the caragana hedge its branches would soon be found hanging over the perennial border even more so than the caragana are doing at present.

If the hedge is trained to a fence open at the bottom to make a decent hedge without pruning. However, we have seen this used in trained form and it seems to grow well. It is slow growing than either caragana or red elder.

HON. W. H. ALLEN DEFENDS RECORD OF GOVERNMENT AT MEETING HELD IN CLAIRMONT

to urge the federal government to bolster up the price of farm products. "There is no doubt," said the minister, "that if the federal government did not stand behind the farmer when the price would have sunk out of sight and the average farmer would have been ruined. The control of agriculture is absolutely necessary if the farmer is to survive."

The speaker at the meeting conferences up to the present have had no appreciable effect, the speaker gave it as his opinion that the time was ripe when the world's growing nations of the world that consumes that when prices will be stabilized.

The speaker's view of the currency was one way suggested by the minister to meet the situation, and he cited the example of the United States where examples of the benefits derived from depreciating the currency. The speaker declared that the Canadian dollar has been followed by the Canadian government, so that the world's countries are following the lead of the world's markets.

Dealing with the live stock situation, Mr. Allen said that the industry was in a bad position and there seemed no good reason why the 20¢ consumed at home should not bring a profit to the producer.

For this reason, he said, the provincial government supported the proposal.

Mr. Allen believed that if given a chance it would operate in the interests of the producer.

"The Liberals in their manifesto," he said, "advocated economic self-reliance and control of the service."

Mr. Allen then explained the cause of the increase in salaries since the government took power. He pointed out that $24,000,000 of the increase was due to the fact that the civil service accounted for in road and highway construction, adding, "I do not think that the civil service has increased at all."

Continuing, the minister observed that the whole question resolved itself in the fact that the government was not responsible for the expenditures were justified.

There was the added expenditure for the Canadian National Railways which had doubled since 1921. Public buildings had to be constructed. This was another amount of criticism.

Mr. Allen next answered the criticism levelled at the government for failing to control the U.S. dollar for and had half a million dollars which he said had never cost the government anything.

Irrigation was put out as another item of expense. These difficulties have been caused by the collapse of farm prices.

"There has not been an increase which has not been in response to public demand," declared Mr. Allen, who then went on to say that the government had done more than the present government in any other western province.

Mr. Allen then turned to the criticism of the soundness of Alberta's position. Mr. Allen drew attention to a statement made by the Alberta government that Alberta bonds are considered the soundest investment of any bonds in Canada.

Continuing to defend the policy of the provincial government, the minister said to carry on the government, which notwithstanding the added services, was some $95,000 less than in 1921.

A resolution for the immediate setting up of a wheat board by the government was passed by the association supporting the principles of the Natural Products Marketing Act.

A resolution on the equalization of the 1930 production was also passed. The delegates almost to a man recognized that the quality of the imports was not equal to that of the 1930 production. Resolution was passed urging the directors to continue to use every effort to secure the best deal for the problem settled, or partially settled. There was some hope expressed that something might be done in the new year, another year goes by, but of course a lot depends on the market trends.

Mr. Purdy, chairman of the delegation, said that the 1930 production was far exceeded over the price spread between "street" and carots of wheat which was dealt with this matter in a lengthy memorandum, explaining the problem fully.

Other resolutions dealt with proposal for a new style of ballot for voting for delegates, a plan to bring the delegates together to set up a committee to review dormant Wheat Pool localities with a view to encouraging irrigation, a resolution asking the government to endow the Central Experimental Farm, a resolution asking the government to endeavor to obtain definite information between Garnet and Marquis wheats, this information to be available before the new year.

At the conclusion of the meeting, Mr. Purdy, the manager, asked the delegates requiring further information to write him for same. He said: "There is nothing hidden in this organization, we are open to all questions. There is nothing that has been done that cannot be fully explained."

Delegates were supplied with a raft of general information and material concerning the organization and its activities. It is planned as usual to hold public meetings in the various towns and cities. The delegates' reports will be given and all matters of general interest discussed.

THE NORTHERN TRIBUNE

"This," he said, "was evidence that the government had done its best to economize. The balance of the $14,000,000 was to be cut out of savings and the only way to effect savings was to cut down interest charges. All parties were agreed on this."

Mr. Allen did not agree with Mr. Howson, leader of the provincial government, that the government should ask the bondholders, many of who live outside of Canada, to reduce their interest rates. His own belief was that the solution was to meet the contract and then borrow money where it could be obtained at lower rates.
